HONGEONG, TUESDAY, APRIL 28, 1891.

THE Governor is plunging. He has got into the mire, and his violent efforts to get out are resulting in his sinking deeper and deeper. Anything more impolitic than Goods por Steamer Sydney unclaimed the calling of the meeting held yesterday he could scarcely have committed. It is not a pleasaut task to criticise. The unofficial members, were perfectly His Excellency's doings, as he is in very justified, even at this time of day, delicate health, and one does not know seeking to stop the absolutely uncalled for how much of the whining petulance dis- and extravagant all-round 35% increase of played is due to plivaical suffering. But splanies, and in protesting against the growing such an exhibition of temper as he showed contliness of government. Their views resterday cannot be passed over in ai- ought to have been transmitted at once to lence. The cause of his strange conduct the Colonial Office, the Governor himself was a firm but very temperately-worded making whatever observation he liked 2,30 p.m. -Auction of Household Farni-The unofficials told him in this letter that, ought to be granted this year and the cognequent on his refusal to telegraph the advisability of stopping it considered, Secretary of State, they had wired, on when next year's estimutes are presented in we are essured, absolutly incorrect.

they were dissatisfied with the financial it back the next, is far worse than position and prospects of the colony giving him no advance at all. - The only and were preparing a memorial. There is persons that might benefit from such prono doubt that this action chraged the Go. cedure would be those that retired during vernor. He was very careful during his the course of the year, who would have admonitory lecture yesterday not to refer the advantage of a pension based on the into the telegram; but that he considered the creased salary. We do not wish to commessage cent to England by the un. ment on Governor Des Voeux's remarks officials the head and front of their offend. about the break of friendship and the loss ing is apparent from his conduct. He made of popularity, as we are sure had he been frantic endeavour to find excess for his in his normal health he would never have wrath in certain expressions made use of given utterance to such whining. No one in the letter, to which he gave a strained in the Colony doubts his honesty and meaning; but the effort only re- straightforwardness, and a breach of friendvesled the desperate nature of his ship need not occur because there is a case. The expression with regard to which decided difference of opinion on political he professed the greatest indignation matters. We do carnestly hope that was the one containing the word insist. Sir William Des Vœux will recover his To insist on Hor Majosty's representative equaningly and desist from the aggrieved doing anything he does not choose to do, fighting cock attitude he has taken up. Governor Des Voeux seemed to consider as something approaching to high treason. No Governor however abject would, he said, submit to such dictation; and he practically told the unofficials that he would not treat with them until they withdrew the remark. The sentence in which the word insist occurs is as follows :- The Unofficial most noted Shippers, are imported in wood Members will be very glad to hear Your Excullency's reasons in Council and if possible to be convinced by them, but they In ordering it is only necessary to must insist upon Your Excellency, before submitting to the Scoretary of State, their Orders through Local Post or by Tele- arguments, still manswered, as well as your reasons, and obtaining his finel decision.' Even standing alone this seems a very harmless sentence; but when it is remembered that these words were written in reply to a letter in which His Excellency curtly refused to grant a legitimate request a request which, we think, 1.25 it was his duty to comply with, whatever were his own opinions-they appear to err on the side of moderation. Having made a proper and most constitutional request, The E. & A. S. S. Co. s. s. Catterthun the unofficial members were acting within their rights in insisting, and strongly insisting, on its being complied with. The cloak of office does not give the Governor of a colony power to do as he chooses, nor the right to accuse any one of disloyal ty who says the Queen's representative and Straits for this port, left Singapore on has done what he ought not to have done. Governor Des Vosux did wrong i refusing to transmit the telegram which the unofficial members wished to send was a perfectly respectful message and he had no right to refuse to send it If he disapproved of the course recommended therein he was at liberty to wire the Colonial Office to that effect at the same time; or request that Office to await his roply. His excuse for allowing a week to slar se before Case. Per Bot. even answering the first letter of the un. ing the same name. official members was of the flimsical character. It was not necessary for him to ascertain the value of every inch of land in the Colony before making up his mind whe ther he would transmit a telegram. Liqueur Cognac, 1872 - The other expressions in the letter which Vintage, Red Capsule 24 2.00 limbered his High and Mightines are even more harmless. The unofficial membors said they can hardly think that His Excellency spoke seriously when be proposed to let the enhanced amounts be paid this year and to consider the advisability of an equally large reduction next 8 0.75 year. Now any one reading the letter would at once see that what the unofficial mombers, wished to convey was their astonishment at the argument used by his Excellency. You surely cannot be serious' is a common way of telling an opponent in debate that his argument has created aurprise. We do not suppose that any of the signatories of the let 10 1.00 ter dreamt for a moment that his Excellency would interpret the words as im plying that they believed he was not serious and that they doubted his moral character. And after making this stupid whining complaint, the Governor goes on . 4.50 0.40 to make much more serious imputations on the character of the unofficials, O Fine A. V. H. Geneva. . 5.25 0.50 for he hinted that they had signed the letter to him without considering the words used, almost implying that the letter was concocted by an outsider and that they had carelessly attached their names to document without studying its contents. The ill-feeling that has arisen between the unofficial members and the Governor is four lukongs in plain clothes (who had been deeply to be regretted. We are not agin

ment. Indeed, we have very frankly denounced the attitude assumed by brought before Mr Wise to-day and senthe unofficial members in the great tenced to six mouths imprisonment. military contribution question and have frequently pointed out that the Go vernor's challenge to prove the in equity of the demand made upon us, in comparison to the amount paid at Home for defence purposes, remained unan swered. But for what has subsequently occurred, for the present breach, we must hold the Governor almost entirely responsible. A little tact and a little consideration for the rights of the Colony would have prevented all the emploasautness. letter sent him by the unofficial members, thereou. The European foreman, viewers, overmen and others employed on the Railway and colliery works at Tongshan having demanded of the Directors the immediate arrest of the Onntonese who made the assault on Mr. Burns, and the demand not being complied with, they left the works in a body on Sunday the 12th and came to Tientsin, where they reported themselves to the British Consul and claimed his projection and assistance. The Consul informed the men on Monday that he had already seen the Vicercy, who had sent up peremptory ordors to arrest the ringleaders and bring them down to Tientsin. He also informed them that the Engineer in chief would be in Tientain the following day and advised them to be ready to return with him to the works on Wednesday. Mr Kinder did not turn up, however, and it was not till the 16th that they received a telegram from the works stating that the five ringleaders had been arrested and sent down to Tunizin. The men therefore returned to the works by the first train on Friday the 17th When they arrived they soon found that they had been deceived, for the Cantonese had not been arrested, but had been allowed to leave the place and were supposed to he on their way to Shanghai. > A RESTAURANT LICENCE REFUSED BY THE JUSTICES.

A special Sessions of Justices of the Perce was held to-day for the purpose of considering an application from Carl Heinrich W. Wallia for a licence to sell intoxicating hiquors as an adjunct to his business as restaurateur at house No. 13 Wollington Street. Mr A. G. Wise presided, and the other Justices present were: Mesars Granvillo Sharp, R. C. Wilcox, A. Shelton Hooper and G. Herapool, Mr. Parkes (of Messrs Caldwell and Wilkinson's Office) appeared for the applicant.

The Chairman said the application was backed by Messrs Roch, Niedhardt and Schmidt as sureties, . He was not aware if Mr Berspool as Acting Captain Superinreference to the application.

Mr Borspool said he had already reportlity of having a restaurant in this place? Mr Borapcol said he did not think it was required.

The Chairman-Then we shall hear what Mr Parkes had to say in support of the Mr Parkes-I have nothing to say :- I have only just heard about it : I did not know it was comingron to-day. Mr Granville Sharp-The Acting Captain and vouched for by the Rev. G. H. Bondfield and the Rev. C. D. Hamilton, Mulitary of England Temperance Society, the second from the National Temperance League and the third from the Independent Order of Good Templars. They are very much alike and they are signed by these gentlemen whom I have mentioned. They state that the only benefit which is supposed to accrue from the granting of a licence would be that the merchant sourney and men of the Royal Navy might obtain additional refreshments. The burden of the three petitions is simply the same in each case,hat abundant provision is already made by he canteens and public-houses now existing and that no further accommodation is at all required. These gentlemen, though they do of see eye to eye in reference to all matters connected with religion, have cordially united together in the effort to prevent additional facilities, - might I say additional temptations-being granted for the consumption of intoxicating liquors by our mercantile marine and by the men Her Majesty's Navy and Army. There to very wide divergencies of opinion on he matter, but I think that at all events all educated and well-wishing men are u. animous in the opinion that the consumption of intoxicating liquors should be imited, and the groatest moderation used. That is the opinion of these men, coming down as they have done from the bigh more ordinary level of desiring moderation.

from the evidence which is before us, and which is open to anyone who will take the ains to study it, an adjunct licence very profits from the sale of liquor are so very much larger than those from the sale of food that the one is entirely absorbed in he other; and I understand that in the ease of a licence granted not long ago the men boast that they can get refreshments cheaper than anywhere elso; provided that they will drink. Any one who lives at the western part of the lown and has frequent occasion to pass along Queen's Road is aware on many ocensions that seemes of a very undestrable character occur at those drinking-houses and I do hope that the Justices, a d more especially your Worship, may be dis used to feel some encouragement in the recent important decision, the unanimous judgment in the House of Lords in the case of Sharp o v. Wakefield. It seems to be what a have teen waiting for, for a great many rears. The opinion now seems to be established; this case was appealed again and again from one authority to another and finally to the House of Lords, who ave unanimously given the opinion that publican ha no rested interest in his icence, and that in the case of Justices lealing with its renewal and especially in the case of grants of new licences if they deem them unnecessary they have a perfeet right to refuse applications. These gentlemen, on whose behalf I am now peaking, would have done much better and they some themselves; I think you would have been more impressed by what you would have heard from them than I can expect you will be by what I have said.

This application is for an adjunct licence.

The Russian banquet at Hankow was great success. It was given in Mr Molot-

The Russian firms with truly princely magnificance invited every one; and dis everything just as handsomely as it could be done. They had a French cook up from Shanghai, they had ices, and the waiting was as good as the cirmer, and rendered pecially effective by all the servants being dressed thike with official caps and long gowns. Guesta were shown into what appeared to be an elegant drawing room with silk curtains of Liberty shades, orange and yellow, the walls covered with a quaint cretonne of foreign make but for the Chinese matket only, therefore Chinese in character. Every one of the foreign community seemed to have lent his best chairs and lamps, a specially beautiful Chinese screen occupying one corner, and the effect was quite that of a drawing-room, especially when all the new gowns ordered for the occasion with court trains took up their positions. But the sakuka room beyond, all of yellow cretonne, curtains and all; had a yet prettier effect, and was of so becoming a hue that ladies regretted they also did not take sakuska. Crowds of Naval Officers arrived, the Germans all speaking English perfectly; and a little before eight appeared the Czyrovitch and Prince George of Greece, with a great following of uniforms: the Russian Charge d'offaires, M. Kleime now, acting in the absence of his Chief. Count Cassini, having come especially from Peking for the occasion, and one or two others being in diplomatic uniform. had been detained at the entrance by Chinese deputation from the Guilda of Hunkow, and the four Tea Proginces of Runau, Rupeh, Shansi, and Uniton. hopresented an address, and made speeches thanking the Emperor of Russiafor he protection and hospitality to Chinamen engaged in the Tea Trade in Russia, as also thanking the Crarevitch for having come to Hankow, the centre of the Tea industry. The speeches were translated by Mr Stortseff who had come for the occasion from Tientain, and who also served as interproter which the Prince replied that he would tell his father. The beautifully dressed deputation then disappointed everyone by withdrawing, and not assisting at the dinner, although they had been duly invited. The Czarevitch is a slight stripling with brown hair, his mother's eyes and forphead, but his father's mouth, and a very aweet expression indicative of great accord porty to receive 40 per cent, and amiability, as also of a naturally affectionate disposition.
